SEMINAR REPORT

Date: 24/11/21

Name of the Seminar: Seminar on the topic "Developing Communication Skills for Future Job"

Name of the Resource person: Dr. M. Krishnaraj

Date: 22/11/21

Number of beneficiary: 33

The students participated in the communication skills program with enthusiasm and engagement. They found the activities to be interactive and valuable for improving their communication abilities. Many students expressed appreciation for the practical exercises that allowed them to practice speaking, listening, and conveying ideas effectively.

One common feedback from the students was the positive impact of the program on their confidence levels. They felt more comfortable expressing themselves in various situations, whether in group discussions or presentations. Several students mentioned feeling more self-assured when communicating with peers and teachers.

Another aspect that students appreciated was the supportive learning environment created during the program. They felt encouraged to step out of their comfort zones and take risks in communicating. This supportive atmosphere helped them overcome their fears of public speaking and enhanced their communication skills.

SEMINAR REPORT

Date: 30/11/21

Name of the Seminar: "Powerful Medium of Communication"

Name of the Resource person: R. Lakshmikaandan M.A., M.Phil., PGDLT, (Ph.D.)

Date & Time: 27/11/21

Number of beneficiary: 22

A panel discussion provided students with a platform to engage in meaningful discourse on the ethical considerations and challenges associated with diverse communication channels. Experts shared their perspectives on issues such as misinformation, privacy concerns, and media bias. Overall, the student's feedback indicates that the communication skills program was a valuable learning experience. They gained practical skills and confidence that they believe will benefit them in their academic and professional pursuits. Many expressed gratitude for the opportunity to enhance such an essential skill set for their future success.

Communication is an essential aspect of human interaction, facilitating the exchange of ideas, emotions, and information. Over time, mediums of communication have evolved, adapting to technological advancements and societal changes. In contemporary society, various forms of communication platforms exist, each possessing unique strengths and reaching diverse audiences. This report aims to explore the significance and impact of powerful mediums of communication in modern times.

The program commenced with a seminar highlighting the evolution of communication from ancient to modern times. The session delved into the significance of traditional mediums such as oral communication, written messages, and postal services in historical contexts.
